

PROJECT MANAGEMENT OFFICE

From informed advice to delivering a fully certified turnkey solution, the Redline Project Management Office (PMO) is your personal key to success in wireless networking.

Talk to the experts at Redline and you will feel secure knowing that no detail will be overlooked. Experience gained over 15 years of sharing our customers' wins and challenges enables us to understand and adapt to your unique business needs.

We use this experience combined with finely tuned technological expertise, to deliver a solution that seamlessly extends your everyday business environment to capitalize on the unlimited potential of wireless networking.

With ever changing technology, even our clients with existing wireless networks are usually more comfortable with operational procedures than the design processes of Radio Frequency (RF) planning, frequency re-use and interference mitigation.

These and other complex RF features are major specializations at Redline where we have the tools and expertise in-house to analyze, design and ensure the performance of your wireless network.

POWERFUL. VERSATILE. RELIABLE.

Redline's staged analysis first verifies coverage feasibility for the sites while considering current and long-term requirements. Subsequent more detailed analysis balances realizable coverage and capacity at sites. This provides a solid foundation to estimate the quantity and location of base station sites, services and the base station site that best serves a remote location.

Redline has you covered with the most efficient network plans in the industry.

Redline PMO can manage full-service contracting from specification, land acquisition, civil works, tower construction, provisioning and training to site and equipment maintenance—all backed by good standing membership in prime Health, Safety & Environment (HSE) organizations.

With ready access to a wide selection of pre-certified products, vendors and contractors, Redline can quickly fulfill your requirements and meet timelines, while maintaining your budget.

Ensure you deliver the most secure and reliable operation available. With an unmatched extensibility for the total lifetime service of your wireless network, Redline offers ample capacity for your future applications.

You deserve the best.
